

ISABEL WEBER, Instructor

Isabel Weber began her dance journey at the age of six, quickly discovering a lifelong passion for movement and expression. She was classically trained under Sharon Rogers at Friends University before continuing her development at Midwest Dance Mechanix, where she danced for four years and deepened her technical and artistic skills. Isabel was later accepted into the University of Missouri–Kansas City’s Dance Conservatory, where she spent two years studying a variety of styles, including contemporary, modern, and African dance.

Recently, Isabel chose to follow her dream of teaching and is now pursuing a degree in elementary education. She has begun teaching dance and finds joy in helping children build confidence and fall in love with dance, just as she did at a young age.

INSTRUCTS: Tiny Dancers, Ballet